

Distribution Box Pricing Table

AI Overview

Distribution box prices vary widely based on material, amperage, IP rating, and customization, ranging from $20 for basic residential units to several hundred dollars for industrial-grade enclosures.

Typical Pricing Overview

Type	Material	Amperage / Circuits	IP Rating	Approx. Price Range (USD)	Notes
Small Residential	Thermoplastic	32A-63A, 2-6 circuits	IP20-IP65	$20-$80	Surface or flush-mounted, basic protection, suitable for homes
Medium Commercial	Metal (Steel/Coated)	63A-125A, 6-12 circuits	IP44-IP66	$80-$250	Includes MCBs, surge protection, optional busbars, suitable for offices or small factories
Industrial / Heavy-Duty	Stainless Steel / High-Grade Steel	125A+, 12+ circuits	IP65-IP69K	$250-$800+	Customizable, modular, high durability, pressure/wash-down resistant, often includes advanced monitoring and safety features
Waterproof / Outdoor	Plastic or Metal	32A-125A	IP65-IP67	$50-$300	Designed for moisture-prone areas, pools, or outdoor facilities, may include power meters

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Steel enclosures are stronger but costlier; stainless steel adds corrosion resistance. Plastic is cheaper but may require UV or flame-retardant additives .
- Ingress Protection (IP) Rating: Higher IP ratings (IP66-IP69K) increase costs due to better seals, precision machining, and testing .
- Amperage and Circuit Capacity: Higher amperage and more circuits require more components like busbars and MCBs, raising material costs .
