AI Overview

A standard residential distribution box typically costs between $1,300 and $1,800 including professional installation, while industrial or smart configurations can cost significantly more depending on features and capacity.

Residential Distribution Boxes

For a standard residential setup, the cost generally ranges from $1,300 to $1,800, which includes professional installation . These boxes usually handle single-phase or basic three-phase configurations and house circuit breakers, fuses, and switches. Prices can increase if the installation involves retrofitting older buildings, as unexpected wiring or structural adjustments may add 15-20% to the total cost .

Industrial and Commercial Distribution Boxes

Industrial or commercial distribution boxes are more expensive due to higher amperage capacity, multiple circuits, and enhanced durability. Costs can run into several thousand dollars, especially for setups requiring weeks of labor, permits, or compliance with strict safety standards . Features such as weather-resistant enclosures, advanced monitoring, and integration with building management systems further increase the price .
